SLEEPOVER AT THE CLINTONS' PLACE

BILL AND HILLARY KNOW A SURE WAY TO FLATTER THE HOLLYWOOD TYPES:
INVITE THEM TO SPEND THE NIGHT IN THE WHITE HOUSE'S HERALDED LINCOLN BEDROOM.
THE CHOSEN FEW ENJOY FIRST-CLASS AMENITIES, LIKE TURNDOWN SERVICE AND MORNING PAPER
DELIVERY. KAREN FELD STEALS A PEEK INTO THE CELEBRITY GUEST BOOK AND NAMES NAMES.

CHEVY CHASE, ACTOR Despite his presidential impersonations, the actor got an invite to stay at the White House as thanks for his performance at a 1994 fundraiser.

JUDY COLLINS, SINGER Collins was invited to stay following the 1993 death of her father, Chuck Collins. "One of the highlights of my life was calling my mother from the Lincoln Bedroom," she recalls. President Clinton has been a longtime fan and named his daughter after her rendition of the song "Chelsea Morning."

RICHARD DREYFUSS, ACTOR In April 1996, the president roused Dreyfuss from slumber at 7:20 a.m. to kibbitz. A year before, Dreyfuss was nonplussed that his work for Democratic causes had not yet earned him a sleepover invite, although he offered that he wouldn't want to stay in the Lincoln Bedroom anyway, as there was no VCR. One year later, he let bygones be bygones and curled up under the red covers.

DAVID GEFFEN, MOVIE AND MUSIC IMPRESARIO After attending the September 1994 state dinner for Russian president Boris Yeltsin, Geffen hit the hay in Honest Abe's old roost. The invite was in part a thank-you for Geffen's major fundraising.

TOM HANKS, ACTOR In June 1995, Hanks was on hand for breakfast with the president and a ceremony honoring James Lovell, the astronaut Hanks played in the film Apollo 13.

ANN LANDERS, ADVICE COLUMNIST "The bed was so high I could hardly get in it," she said after her 1996 sleepover. But the climb had its payoffs. "I slept like a rock."

BARBRA STREISAND, DIVA/DIRECTOR Her Lincoln Bedroom stay followed the White House correspondent's dinner in April 1993.

MARY STEENBURGEN, ACTRESS In April 1995, the Clintons' Arkansas pal enjoyed a predawn dip in the White House pool and an afternoon stroll on the Mall, where she and the first lady sauntered in old clothes, hats, and sunglasses.

PAUL NEWMAN AND JOANNE WOODWARD and STEVEN SPIELBERG AND KATE CAPSHAW are among the Hollywood couples who have slept at the Clintons' in style.
